PEACE IN NICARAGUA.

Under new conditions prevailing in Nicaragua, it is expected the relations of the United States with the little republic will be materially improved. Provisional President Estrada has invited this government to appoint a high commissioner to negotiate a treaty covering all American claims, those on account of the murder of Groce and Cannon being included.

Since the triumph of the revolutionists Nicaragua has been quiet, and will probably remain so until after the next election for president, when the defeated may be expected to take to the woods and start another scrap.

If such a catastrophe does not occur, it will be owing to the fact that Uncle Sam is keeping his weather eye on the Central American republic, or because the natives have had a little sense pounded into them during the past year or two.

Considerable depends upon the ability and integrity of General Estrada. If the Nicaraguans are given an opportunity to select a president by ballot and Estrada is fairly chosen, all will be well. On the other hand, if the successful revolutionist attempts to perpetuate his power by unfair means, the country will not have been the gainer by a change of masters.

The United States is in a way responsible for the rectitude of Estrada, and should not hesitate to make him fulfill his promises if he shows the least sign of becoming a dictator.

BIRDS ARE WARNED.

Thousands of lives have been lost in Russia during the past year owing to an epidemic of cholera. The disease has spread to Prussia and some of the countries in the southern part of Europe. The marine hospital service has taken alarm and the ports of this country are being closely watched in order to prevent the introduction of the Asiatic scourge into the United States.

Since the latest outbreak of cholera in Russia much has been published concerning the disease. Among other things it is said that certain birds of the air migrate from countries afflicted with cholera, and do not return until it is over or at least begins to abate.

Such action on the part of the feathered tribe was first observed in Sweden in 1834, when that country was visited by the disease. At that time all the jackdaws and sparrows winged their flight to more favorable localities. There is a tradition from Mauritius to the same effect, except in this case the exodus was not confined to jackdaws and sparrows.

In India the kites and vultures leave their accustomed haunts and seek other fields when the disease begins to rage, and the natives take it as a sign that the worst is over when the birds begin to return.

They seem to know instinctively when to return, and herein may be seen one of the wonderful provisions of nature.

RUSH CONTINUES.

It seems to be a settled fact that the United States will be compelled to absorb a constant stream of immigrants from the European countries for some years to come, more particularly from various Russian provinces where the people are oppressed.

Poles, Hebrews, Lithuanians and others are seeking their fortunes over here rather than remain under a despotic form of government, such as obtains in Russia at the present time.

There is also a large emigration from Russia in Europe to the vast plains of Asia, thousands of the poorer classes making the trip to Siberia on foot with all their worldly possessions packed up in sacks and handkerchiefs. Many of these unfortunates would also come to the United States if they could secure money enough for steerage passage.

The rush from the south of Europe also continues. There will be fewer arrivals during the winter months, but next spring all the records of the immigration bureau will be broken, according to the present outlook.

DEAD LOSS OF MILLIONS.

Forty thousand Illinois coal miners who had been out on strike since June 1, returned to work last Friday. The loss in wages during the existence of the strike is estimated at $12,000,000. The men gained an 8 per cent increase in wages and their gain in annual income will be approximately $4,000,000.

Mine operators figure their loss at $18,000,000, and the coal shortage is placed at 20,000,000 tons. These losses can never be recovered. The miners may be compensated in part by an increased scale of wages, but the loss of the operators is total.

It was bad business for all hands. The Brannan act was not sufficient.

together and force a settlement. Mediation and arbitration alike failed to accomplish the desired result, both sides having bowed their backs for a long struggle.

The trouble was fought out and an appalling loss has resulted which could have been avoided by the proper exercise of a spirit of conciliation and compromise. There should be some way of settling these labor disputes without calling out the militia.

EQUALITY UNDER THE LAW.

One of the strong points of Taft's speech on conservation at St. Paul was made when, after calling attention to specific legislative acts passed in the interest of the workingmen, he indicated the place where this class of legislation would stop under his administration, as follows:

But there is a kind of legislation to which I would refer that does come under the head of vicious class legislation, and I hope I can make the distinction clear between this and what I have been describing.

A number of statutes have been passed in the states against combinations or conspiracies to restrain trade, to suppress competition, or to maintain prices; and there has been sometimes an attempt to insert in such statutes a proviso or a section exempting farmers or other classes from the operation of the statute, so as to enable the exempt classes to corner products and raise prices while no other class in the community can do so.

The supreme court of the United States has held that such a law gives an undue privilege to a particular class in the community, creates an unjust exemption from the operation of a useful law, denies the equal protection of the laws, violates the constitution, and is invalid.

The claim was made that laboring men should be exempt from the anti-trust law, and it was gravely proposed that the executive be forbidden by act of Congress to use any of the money appropriated for prosecutions under the anti-trust act in the prosecution of workmen who had violated the law. This would have been what the President called it—vicious class legislation. As such it could not have successfully passed the constitutional test.

In this, as in all other matters, the executive has shown his determination to keep within the prescribed limits of the constitution and enforce the law impartially. No safe man would attempt to do more.

INDIANS PROGRESSING.

Under the paternal care of the United States government the American Indians are not only being educated but otherwise qualified to take up the burdens of life in a civilized manner. The boys are taught farming and the industrial arts, and the girls domestic science, in addition to a prescribed course of study.

Under such conditions it will not be many generations before the Indians will be completely assimilated, and Poor Lo become but a memory.

There is no prejudice against one's having Indian blood in his or her veins, such as exists in the case of the negro. A vast number of people have claimed descent from Pocahontas during the last two centuries, and they all seemed to be proud of the alleged fact.

Two of the present members of the United States Senate have Indian as well as Caucasian ancestors. Senator Curtis of Kansas is part Wyandotte, and Senator Owen of Oklahoma part Cherokee. Both are bright men and stand high in the estimation of their colleagues.

Some of the Indian tribes possess a great advantage over the white citizens of the country, for the reason that they possess vast tracts of rich agricultural and mineral lands, a good start in life being assured each and every one of them. This will make the work of assimilation more rapid than it would otherwise have been, for an Indian maiden with a good education and from $5,000 to $20,000 in her possession, is reasonably certain to find a white partner for her joys and sorrows and ready cash.

FEDERAL ACTION LIKELY.

Attorney General Wickersham is in Montana for the purpose of looking up the facts regarding the alleged damage to the forests by smelter smoke and listening to the complaints of the farmers in the Deer Lodge valley, who claim that their crops are ruined by the noxious fumes emanating from the big smelter off the Amalgamated Copper company at Anaconda.

Action was brought against the company several years ago, but a definite conclusion was not reached, such as resulted from the suits brought in Utah. The presence of the attorney general in Montana, therefore, would seem to indicate that the federal government is about to begin proceedings.

THE ADVERTISING SPIRIT.

The Zodiac Sky Advertising company has been incorporated under the laws of the state of Delaware, with several capitalists of New York as officers and directors.

The plans of the company have not been fully imparted to the public, so the use of airships in the advertising business is somewhat of a mystery at present.

Fortunately the unsightly bill boards cannot be used, and it will be impossible to decorate the clouds with flaming letters calling attention to this, that or the other thing. Printed matter can be scattered in a more effective and less expensive manner, and streamers floating from the airship would do little good.

Notwithstanding the doubt of its utility, the formation of the Delaware company possesses a certain element of interest, showing, as it does, the verifying. The man who hesitates is lost, and the man who doesn't advertise is never found.

It may be truthfully stated at this point that The Herald-Republican, having by far the largest circulation in this newspaper field, is the only medium assuring the advertisers value received for their money.

AN ALLEGED REASON.

The Chicago Inter-Ocean is authority for the statement that former President Roosevelt has been nursing his wrath against Senator Lorimer for seven long years.

The story of the Chicago paper is to the effect that a conference with the Illinois delegation was held in the White House over a plan Colonel Roosevelt had in mind of straining the constitution a few points and putting the big packing houses under direct control of the agricultural department.

Senator Lorimer was a member of the lower House at that time, and had the hardihood to oppose the executive's plan at the conference. The bill failed and Lorimer was marked for destruction at the first opportunity.

With this statement of the case in mind, one can readily see why the vials of wrath descended in Chicago last Thursday. What cannot be understood, however, is why the Hamilton club should fall for it.

AMERICANS CHOSEN.

The Persian national council has decided to appoint seven Americans as financial advisers of the government of the shah, and great is the wrath of Russia and Great Britain, who look with jealous eyes upon the intrusion of a third power into one of their pastures.

The Russian and British diplomats at Teheran favored the appointment of financial advisers from one of the smaller countries, Swiss being preferred. An influential section of the Persian parliament favored the appointment of Frenchmen. In the end Americans were chosen.

On the quiet it is hinted that the Persian government hopes to secure financial aid from this country as well as financial advisers. In such an event the hostility of the European nations interested would be intensified, for the United States could not avoid protecting the investments of its citizens.

With American financial advisers on the ground, the investments would probably be taken care of in a satisfactory manner. Nevertheless this country would have a greater interest in the ultimate fate of Persia, and would have to be reckoned with if Russia and Great Britain have any schemes for aggrandisement for the future.

The power and prestige of the United States seems to be constantly growing.

A GO THIS TIME.

The Elkins-Abruzzi match is said to have been definitely arranged this time, $5,000,000 for the duke and a title for the bride. The special dispatches go into detail and state that the American girl is to be made an Italian countess in her own right prior to the celebration of the nuptials, and is to renounce her Protestant faith.

The old Duchess of Aosta, who has succeeded in preventing the match for a year or two, is said to have withdrawn her opposition, and the financial arrangements being considered satisfactory, Abruzzi will call the American girl wife.

Allowing that the $5,000,000 part of the story is true, one is enabled to arrange a scale of prices for foreign titles. For instance, a duke who is related to a royal family being placed on the matrimonial market at $5,000,000, a marquess should be tagged at $3,000,000, a count at $2,000,000, an earl at $1,000,000, and all the lesser lordlings at from $5,000 up to $500,000, the titles to be guaranteed free from blemish in all instances.

The plain, common, ordinary, everyday foreigner, of course, isn't worth a whoop for matrimonial purposes and will have to take his chances of capturing an American heiress with the young citizen of the United States who hasn't any handle to his name.

Neither of them, however, stands a ghost of a show when there's a title to be had.

The crazy streak in the tribe of Chanler has developed in the action of that interesting family who married Lena Cavallieri a couple of months ago. Chanler has settled his entire fortune upon his wife, left her forever and proposes to make his living by painting. A big-whiskered Russian having succeeded him in the affections of the fair Lena, it was a sure sign of insanity when Chanler turned over his fortune to the fickle singer.

William James, the noted Harvard professor, who recently died, has sent a message from the other world and spiritualism has taken a new lease of life in consequence. Most people, however, will decline to believe that the veil really has been lifted.

A sailor under arrest at San Diego for desertion claims that his wife induced him to leave Uncle Sam's service before his time had expired. Father Adam offered the same excuse for his transgression without avail.

A Lexington, Ky., woman has announced her candidacy for Congress. Will Kentucky chivalry arise to the occasion?

The Contest Is On

Four ladies have signified their intention of winning the watch and chain if possible. We will not publish the ladies' names until the end of the contest. Of the four already in the race, three live in Salt Lake City and one lives in Ogden. Between now and next Sunday there will be many others in the race. There is no time limit as to when you may commence, but the contest will close on October the 15th at 10 o'clock p. m. The sooner you commence, the better.

The following shows the position of the contestants at present:

No. 1, 2,150 votes	No. 3, 2,450 votes
No. 2, 2,150 votes	No. 4, 2,180 votes

Votes are obtained by the number of honest debts and volume of business you turn in for collection.

This contest is for ladies only. Turn in all of your own claims and get as many claims as you can from your friends and relatives, merchants, blacksmiths and others.

The solid gold watch and chain with eight diamond settings will be given away free to the lady who turns in the greatest number of honest debts and volume of business between now and the close of the contest.

The lady turning in the second greatest number of claims and volume of business will receive $40.00 in cash.

The watch and chain are on exhibition at the Daynes Jewelry company, No. 128 South Main street, Salt Lake City. The case is solid 14-karat gold with seven diamond settings therein. The chain is solid 14-karat gold with diamond setting in slide. The movement is a genuine 17-jewel adjusted Elgin. The watch, chain and movement were purchased by us from the Daynes Jewelry company for this contest, and they guarantee them in every particular to be just as represented.

This is an easy way for you to obtain a fine watch and chain. Everybody believes honest debts should be paid. Everybody will help you to win the prize if you make an effort.

The contest will be on in earnest in the next few days, and you should commence at once.

You can also have your friends turn their bills in with the understanding that the votes are to be credited to your number.
